Design case studies

Study 1. Realising that 3rd party swimming pool and spa design expertise was necessary to deliver on their demanding brief, a leading London architectural firm approached Amalfi Luxury Design on behalf of their oversees client. Our brief was to design a unique indoor swimming pool – incorporating heating & ventilation requirements - suitable for their very discerning client's needs that would also pass through Planning stages. Working closely with architects, engineers, planners and property developers, Amalfi Luxury Design not only delivered an exquisite design that met their client's high expectations and the needs of Planning, but our installation division (Amalfi Wellness) has been invited to build it for them.

Study 2. When a globally renowned hospitality brand calls to ask for your advice, you know the project is going to be rewarding! Working to demanding timelines and with no scope for error, we created a premium spa suite design which is appreciated by the brand's clientele every day. It's partly because our design team has specific swimming pool, spa and wellness installation and build experience that we can ensure our design projects not only look aesthetically appealing, but that they will work as they're supposed to!

Study 3. When our client bought their exclusive 5-story town house in London the only thing missing was a swimming pool. Working alongside a leading architect, property developer and interior design team, our designers understood how unique and personal this project was to all those involved. Taking inspiration from the latest in swimming pool, spa and wellness technology and sustainability techniques, Amalfi Luxury Design designed a personal wellness suite including swimming pool, plunge pool, sauna and steam room. Once again, we were invited to extend our time on the project and build from our design.

Study 4. Many of our recent installation projects have started as design works, and while many of these are in and around London there are many more in locations in the southwest and central England. One such recent design project began life on a Cornish cliffside retreat overlooking the sea. Our client's vision: a dream pool situated on the same cliffside, housed within a glass and timber framed award-winning structure. Could we (they asked) see their vision, and could we capture their dream? Working with their lead architect through RIBA Stages 2 – 4, we devised an exquisite design to match the dream of our client within the stunning setting.
